++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
Sunshine and showers today. Windy with heavy rain tonight.

Today:
A divide in the weather, with the north of the country seeing cloud quickly bubbly up through the day, accompanied by some, occasionally heavy showers. In the south, the odd coastal shower remains possible, but sunny skies for most. Maximum temperature 12 deg C (54 deg F).

Tonight:
A clear evening as any lingering showers die away. This will be short-lived however: strong winds develop with heavy rain from the southwest. Risk of gales in exposed locations. Minimum temperature 2 deg C (36 deg F).

Saturday:
A very wet and windy day, with the heaviest most persistent rain over south-facing high ground, especially the Brecon Beacons. Risk of gales in exposed locations. Maximum temperature 14 deg C (57 deg F).

Outlook for Sunday to Tuesday:
Remaining windy and unsettled throughout, with showers possibly becoming thundery or containing hail. Some longer spells of rain at times. Risk of gales in exposed areas. Nights turning milder.
